House May Extend FAA Funding for 19th Time

Last week, the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee introduced legislation to seek another short-term extension of FAA funding and programs. If enacted, it will be the 19th such extension.

House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee Chairman John Mica (R-Fla.) said both the House and the Senate committee members are working to try to finalize long-term legislation before the current extension expires on May 31; however, if a final bill is not reached, the short-term extension legislation will be back-up to ensure continued funding through June 30.
